

The research commercialisation office of the University of Oxford, previously called Isis Innovation, has been renamed Oxford University Innovation

All documents and other materials will be updated accordingly. In the meantime the remaining content of this Isis Innovation document is still valid.

URLs beginning www.isis-innovation.com/... are automatically redirected to our new domain, www.innovation.ox.ac.uk/...

Phone numbers and email addresses for individual members of staff are unchanged

Email : enquiries@innovation.ox.ac.uk

Seed Fund Support

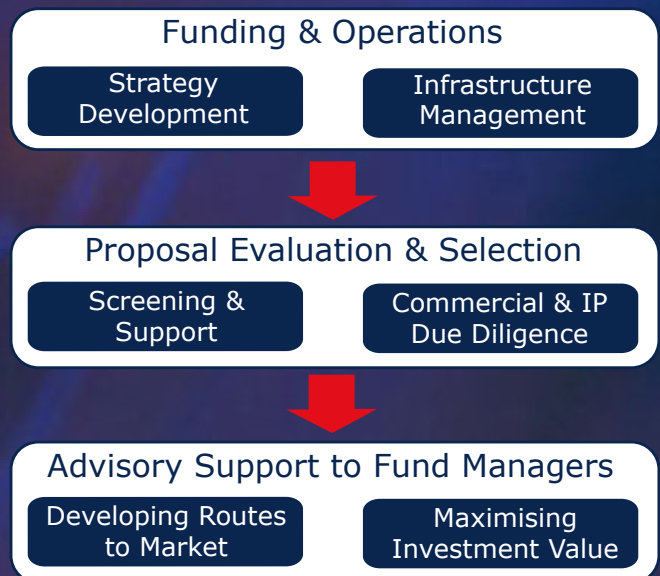

Supporting the development, operations and investment management of technology funds

The Isis Offering

Seed funds are a vital component in the tool kits of universities and research organisations, bridging the gap between research and commercial products.

Isis provides support and expertise in seed fund management from initial strategy development through project screening and support to maximising the value of project investments.

Our offering draws on experience gained supporting more than 100 tech transfer clients world-wide, managing successful funds such as the Oxford University Challenge Seed Fund, and developing funds for our global clients.

Where Isis Can Help...

Strategy and policy – establishing rules on ownership, exploitation rights and revenue share agreements.

Budget and investment – raising investment from public and private sectors.

People – developing skills for fund management, project screening, due diligence and commercialisation.

Networks – improving links between research and industry, facilitating the flow of discoveries into business.

Working with entrepreneurial researchers – ensuring support and commitment from innovators without whom commercialisation is impossible.

A Bespoke Service According To Your Requirements

Isis provides its range of services and tools designed to meet your needs, from support and advice to hands-on delivery. Our consultants will work with you in developing the right support mode and components required for seed fund delivery to bridge the innovation gap within the context of your organisation.

Our People Make The Difference

Isis experts are drawn from different technical backgrounds including life and physical sciences, engineering and software, environmental and renewables, as well as from investment and consulting. We also have extensive industry and commercialisation experience, with track records in seed fund strategy formulation, management and operations.

Next Steps

Contact us to discuss how Isis might work with you in developing and delivering your seed funds, bridging the gap between research and the market. We will work with you to develop the right offering to suit your needs.

- enterprise@isis.ox.ac.uk
- +44 (0) 1865 280848
- Isis Innovation Ltd, Ewert House, Ewert Place, Summertown, Oxford, OX2 7SG, United Kingdom